The Politics of Digital Transformation: Challenges and Opportunities for the EU and Australia

Donnerstag, 12. Dezember 2019

18–20 Uhr c.t.

Campus C7 4, Raum 1.17

Prof. Dr. Anthony Elliott
(University of South Australia)

The accelerating advance of digital transformation in the workplace is having profoundly disruptive impacts on employment, especially with respect of lower skilled jobs. Professor Elliott examines the diversity of region-specific challenges and opportunities stemming from digital transformation across the EU; advanced robotics and the transformation of enterprises, employment and work; AI technologies and the redefinition of digital skills; and, policy and other strategic options aimed at the facilitation and socially inclusive management of these profound technological transitions. The relevance of European approaches for non-EU countries, such as Australia, will be a key theme.

Anthony Elliott ist Professor für Soziologie und Geschäftsführer des Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence and Network an der University of South Australia.
